USTA PRO CIRCUIT WOMEN'S TENNIS RETURNS TO CHARLOTTESVILLE, CONTINUES WOMEN'S ROLAND GARROS WILD CARD CHALLENGE

The Boyd Tinsley Clay Court Classic returns to Charlottesville for the 16th consecutive year. It is the only USTA Pro Circuit women's event held in Virginia. Charlottesville also hosts a $75,000 USTA Pro Circuit men's Challenger in early November.

Charlottesville is also the third of four consecutive women's clay-court tournaments (joining an $80,000 event in Indian Harbour Beach, Fla., and $60,000 events in Dothan, Ala., and Charleston, S.C.) that are part of the Roland Garros Wild Card Challenge, which will award a men's and women's wild card into the 2017 French Open. Numerous men's tournaments are also taking place over the next four weeks to award a wild card.

The American man and American woman who earn the most ATP and WTA ranking points over the next four weeks will receive USTA wild cards to compete in the main draws of the French Open, which will be held Sunday, May 28, to Sunday, June 11. Players who do not receive direct entry into the French Open are eligible for the wild cards. The USTA and the French Tennis Federation have a reciprocal agreement in which wild cards into the 2017 French Open and 2017 US Open are exchanged.

This tournament will be streamed live on www.procircuit.usta.com.
